Deborah J. Lucchesi, 63, was born in Chicago, IL on February 9, 1962.

The daughter of Shirley and Robert Lucchesi, Debbie was the youngest of three siblings (sisters Linda and Karen).

Debbie graduated from Glenbard North in Carol Stream, IL. Debbie has fond memories of her high school years; most especially the times she spent with JoAnne Shaw and Susan Holmberg.

Debbie was a college graduate of the University of Oregon with a degree in biology. These were among the most amazing years of her life as she loved the youthfulness of the campus, the socializing and the football games.

In 1992 Debbie was blessed by the birth of her oldest daughter Alesha, and then was blessed once again in 1998 when her daughter Melissa was born.

In previous years Debbie has enjoyed travel with Michael Seymour, nice dinners trying new foods and wines, and sharing their faith.

Survivors include her mother, Shirley Lucchesi, daughters Alesha (Jose) and Melissa, sisters Linda (John) and Karen (John) along with many loved aunts, uncles, nieces and nephews.

Debbie was predeceased by her father Robert and her grandparents.

Debbie was a loving mother with the kindest soul and an infectious laugh. She was deeply loved and leaves behind cherished memories, her life a reflection of faith, love, and grace.

Services will be held at Christ Community Church in St. Charles on Saturday, July 12th at 11am.

Donations may be made to Lazarus House in St. Charles in Debbie's memory.
